CHAMBERLAIN LAUDS PEACE NOTES OF FDR

Prime Minister Before House of Commons Today

London, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today acclaimed the contribution of President Roosevelt to last week's negotiations which averted a European war.

"The voice of the most powerful nation in the world," spoke across the sea to sway Europe's statesmen to ways of peace, declared Chamberlain in his defense in a tense House of Commons of the Munich four-power accord for dismembering Czechoslovakia.

The prime minister angrily tossed back cries of "Shame!" at his critics and announced an immediate $50,000,000 loan for dismembered Czechoslovakia.

"The prayers of millions were answered," by the Munich pact, Chamberlain declared.

The prime minister replied to a bitter denunciation of his bargain with the dictators by Alfred Duff Cooper, who quit Saturday as first lord of the admiralty and who broke into bitter sobbing when he declared that the Munich terms "stuck in my throat."

Tributes to Signatories

Chamberlain paid tributes to President Roosevelt and to his fellow signatories of the Munich agreement, Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premiers Mussolini and Daladier.

"The messages of President Roosevelt, so fairly and yet so persuasively made, showed how the voice of the most powerful nation in the world could make itself heard across 3,000 miles of ocean and sway the minds of men in Europe," said the prime minister.

Chamberlain told the house "I have nothing to withdraw or regret" concerning the accord of Munich.

Chamberlain began his defense of his bargain with the German chancellor and the premiers of Italy and France after it had been bitterly assailed by Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned Saturday as first lord of the admiralty because the Munich terms "stuck in my throat."

"When the house met last Wednesday," the prime minister recalled, "we were under the shadow of a great and imminent menace. War, more stark and terrible than it had ever appeared before, seemed to be staring us in the face. x x x

"Prayers Are Answered"

"Today we know that the prayers of millions (for peace) have been answered."

Chamberlain received a great ovation from the government side when he rose to speak at 3:32 P. M. (9:32 A. M., C. S. T.)

"The responsibilities of the members of the cabinet during the last few weeks has been almost overwhelming," he said. "Some of us will carry the mark of it for the rest of our days."

Declaring that haste in reaching a settlement of the Czechoslovak crisis was imperative, Chamberlain went on:

"All the elements were present for the outbreak of a conflict which might have precipitated a catastrophe."

The prime minister announced the government had "requested the Bank of England to provide the necessary credit" for a loan of 10,000,000 pounds ($50,000,000) to the Prague government.

The government is considering a Czechoslovak request for a total loan of 30,000,000 pounds ($150,000,000), he said.

Duff Cooper explained his resignation with a bitter denunciation of the way Chamberlain directed British policy throughout the crisis over Czechoslovakia.

He declared that Britain must be prepared to fight against any other attempt by any nation to dominate Europe by force, and added:

Praise of Hitler

The prime minister went at length into an effort to show that Hitler had made concessions at Munich for his previous demands. He gave Mussolini credit for getting the mobilization of the Ger-

Dreams Come True

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Three thousand youngsters had a dream come true. They saw a circus free, and didn't have to sneak in to do it.

They were guests of Louis L. Meitus, lumberman, who started out to buy two ponies for his youngsters from a disbanded circus and came back with a whole menagerie.

To make the day complete, he fed the children 15,000 bottles of pop and 7,000 free pounds of peanuts as they watched the show in his lumberyard.

LOCAL PATRONS OF MOVIES PAY $4,500 IN TAXES

Sixty-One Fees Included in Price of Average Ticket

The 61 direct and hidden taxes included in the price of the average movie ticket drain more than $4,500 annually from Dixon's 1,700 movie-going families, states the National Consumers Tax Commission.

"More than 16 per cent of the price of an average admission ticket is due to the imposition of 41 federal and 20 state and local tax levies," the commission adds, basing its conclusions on attendance figures compiled by the Bureau of Economics in the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This non-profit, non-partisan commission has added the above data to its comprehensive survey of taxes "which penalizes the consumer" in its sweeping, nationwide fight against all such levies.

Local Units Springing Up

Local units of the commission are springing up in community after community throughout the country, declared Mrs. Franklin M. Miller of Chicago, Illinois' representative on the commission's national committee, issuing a statement from its Chicago headquarters.

"Even in the enjoyment of their leisure, the American family cannot throw off the stifling pressure of their enormous tax load," Mrs. Miller said. "The cost of food, clothing, rent, automobiles and cosmetics, is likewise drastically increased by direct and hidden taxes. And these levies are already equal to 23.6 per cent of the national income."

With 72 per cent of the families in the Central States spending a yearly average of $16 each for the enjoyment of attending motion pictures, Mrs. Miller said, the same movie tax load prevails in all communities in this area.

Three Youths Admit Slaying in Holdup

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The confessions of three Eldorado youths in the attempted holdup of a filling station near here last Friday night in which Mrs. Nora Burns, 60, was slain and her husband, Sam, seriously wounded, were claimed by State's Attorney Lloyd H. Melton today.

Charles Russell, 20, was accused of the shooting in statements Melton said were signed by Carl E. Trail, 18, and Pete Mayfield, 21. The state's attorney said Russell denied he fired the fusillade and accused Mayfield.

Russell and Mayfield were arrested at Eldorado after Trail had been taken into custody at Alton, Ill., when he appeared at a hospital for treatment of a bullet wound. Trail admitted his part in the crime and named the others, Melton said.

The aged woman and her husband were shot without warning as Burns was unlocking a gasoline pump at the station. Burns, although wounded in the abdomen, carried his wife inside where she died before aid could be summoned.

Naval Officers Shake Heads Over Division of Nation's Sea Force

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Some naval officers have been shaking heads dubiously over the navy's creation of an Atlantic squadron of 14 of its newest cruisers and destroyers.

The cardinal sin of naval strategy, they were taught at Annapolis, is to divide sea forces, even in peacetime.

Their unspoken doubt of the high command's decision found voice today in the Army and Navy Journal, service weekly, which suggested that "it must be that amateur strategists are fiddling with the United States fleet."

Parade Through Loop is Greeting to Gabby Hartnett's Boys

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs, conquering heroes of the National League, rode in a triumphant parade through the crowd-jammed loop today.

Cheering thousands applauded from curbs shouted from windows and tossed confetti from skyscrapers as the new champions moved in a motorcade from Wrigley Field to the city hall.

With the plaudits of 5,000 hilarious fans ringing in their ears, the players left the ball park in five open cars and whisked down Lake Shore Drive.

The procession formed at Wacker Drive, with the police department's band and the Black Horse troop of cavalry in the van.

A storm of torn paper enveloped them at the Wrigley building. State street was lined deep holiday throngs a dozen deep. Hundreds broke through police lines and surged about the machines.

Their Day to Howl

This was their day to howl. They shrieked and whistled and beat their hands.

The parade moved slowly south in State street, turned west in Jackson boulevard and then north in LaSalle street.

Another blizzard whirled about the heads of the pennant winners in the deep canyon of the financial district.

Manager "Gabby" Hartnett, face split in a wide grin, waved his injured hand to the celebrators.

The other members of the squad, singled out for individual accolades, smiled and bowed.

The celebration culminated in an official reception on the LaSalle street side of the city hall. Teeming thousands milled about the speaker's stand to see Mayor Edward J. Kelly extend the city's congratulations to the team that roared out of fourth place at the fag-end of the season and took the league by storm.

Leaving their former manager, Charles Grimm, out of the picture, the Cubs voted today to split their world's series spoils into 26 shares.

The impression prevailed that Grimm was not included because his salary was paid in full for the 1938 season when he was deposed by Hartnett July 20th. The Cubs felt slighted when Grimm, now a broadcaster for a Chicago radio station, did not appear in the Cubs' dressing rooms at St. Louis when they clinched the pennant Saturday. Grimm was broadcasting at St. Louis at the time.

The Cubs voted to give Vance Page, a pitcher acquired recently from Indianapolis, a half-share and a quarter of a share for Paul Epperly, a rookie pitcher, farmed out this season. Bob Logan, a left-handed pitcher, released to Indianapolis, was given $500.

Weather Uncertain

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd today told prospective customers for the opening game of the world series here Wednesday there was a possibility they might leave their top coats at home.

But, he added quickly, there also were indications they might attend the game wearing rain coats.

Lloyd said today's weather map

MAY REQUEST A NEW TRIAL FOR JAMES W. CRABB

Pekin, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—James W. Crabb's counsel prepared today to ask for a new trial on perjury charges which had their genesis in divergent statements Crabb made after the mysterious gun-death of his comely bride March 1.

The 22-year-old scion of a Delavan banking family was convicted Saturday night by a circuit court jury which deliberated three and a half hours.

The evidence included two stories Crabb told about the death of his wife, the former Betty Colison.

One, given at the inquest, was that he was not present when the 19-year-old girl was wounded fatally in a bedroom of the Delavan home of his father, Willis Crabb.

The second, which Sheriff Ralph Goar said Crabb made a few hours after the inquest, related that the young bride was shot accidentally as she wrestled for possession of a revolver with her husband.

Attorney W. J. Reardon said he would file an appeal to the state supreme court if he were denied a new trial.

Crabb remained at liberty under $17,500 bond. He still faced a possible trial on manslaughter charges. The first trial in these charges resulted in a hung jury.

Fratricide Charge Against Marylander

Elkton, Md., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Puzzled officers held John Goodyear on a technical murder charge today pending further investigation of the bizarre slaying of his brother, James Goodyear, Jr., in the room of his bed-ridden mother.

The accused man refused to discuss the shooting, Sheriff Eugene Racine said, and other members of the family could throw no light on the strange slaying.

The shooting occurred while James Goodyear, Jr., 43, was visiting his sick mother. Two shots were fired through the window, Racine said he was informed, pellets from the blasts grazing the back of Mrs. Goodyear's head.

Racine, called by neighbors who heard the firing, arrested John, 40, near the home. He had a gun in his possession, the sheriff said.

The brothers went squirrel hunting together Saturday, Racine said, and were apparently on good terms.

Father and Five Children Dead as Result of His Efforts to Start Fire

Deep River, Conn., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Louis Beckwith and five of his eight children are dead—victims of an explosion that sent flames roaring through his home yesterday while he was trying to start a fire in the kitchen stove with an inflammable liquid.

The five children perished in the flames. Beckwith lived long enough to drive the three who escaped to a dairy, where aid was summoned. His feet were so badly burned he could not manipulate clutch or brake, but the children did it at his direction while he steered.

The dead were Mary, 18; Charlotte, 11; Irving, 8; Robert, 3, and Edward, 18 months. The survivors, all injured in leaping from the second floor into a tree, were Lillian, 16; Bertram, 10, and Willis, Jr.

Mrs. Beckwith was visiting her invalid mother in a neighboring town.

While Coroner Norris H. Wrubel arranged for an inquest Tuesday, the American Legion planned a military funeral for the six victims the same day.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA DWINDLES AS THE PRICE FOR PEACE

British and French Heads Seek to Justify Their Actions at Munich

By The Associated Press

Reichsfuehrer Hitler ceremoniously entered the Sudetenland today amid great rejoicing, while Polish troops occupied another segment of Czechoslovakia's shrinking frontier and the Prague government arranged to clean up with Hungary its last unsettled minority issue.

The British and French governments, meanwhile, prepared accounts for the price Czechoslovakia is paying at their behest for the Munich peace that remade a vital part Europe's map and hoped their people would approve.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain met with his cabinet before going into Parliament to read a written speech on the Munich four-power conference and face the criticisms both of laborites and dissident conservatives.

The French government prepared to try to push through Parliament, convoked for an extraordinary session for tomorrow, approval of its foreign policy, particularly the Munich accord.

Cost France Dearly

The Munich peace cost France dearly. It gave Germany the military "key to Europe" which, French military authorities say, will release 30 German divisions for possible duty on the French frontier. It cost France Czechoslovakia as the keystone of her eastern European policy and weakened the reliance on France of such countries as Rumania, Yugoslavia, Poland and Hungary.

As Hitler crossed the frontier into the third of four zones his soldiers will occupy in Sudetenland, he was celebrating what was probably his greatest triumph since his advent to power. Thousands cheered loudly, almost mad with joy, to welcome him and Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, who accompanied him.

Germany looked to her next goals. A trade treaty with the United States emerged as one. Economic supremacy in the Balkans and understanding with France were others.

Secretary's Job

"I'm doing that because I'm not required by law to certify that. It's the job of the secretary of state."

Hughes indicated the governor doubted the legality of the legislature's action in directing that an explanation of the banking amendment be printed on the ballot. This explanation and argument for its passage was approved in a special session of the legislature.

Hughes said it would be on the ballot that he and Auditor Barrett would certify to the county clerks tonight.

Earlier, it was disclosed that Hughes and Barrett already had certified to county clerks the William Hale Thompson war referendum proposal which will be on a separate ballot at the election. Horner had refused to sign this certification also, contending he was not the proper official.

Horner withheld his approval of both ballots in a meeting of the board Saturday. He said he questioned whether he was the "proper official" to approve the referendum by which Thompson, former Chicago mayor, seeks to put voters on record against United States participation in foreign wars.

Certificates Mailed

In Hughes' office, it was made known the certificates officially authorizing the referendum were mailed out anyway under the signatures of Hughes and Auditor Edward J. Barrett, other members of the certifying board. It was Hughes' contention a majority of the board could act.

The governor's explanation for delaying his signing of certificates for the full ballot listing candidates was that he expected by today to know the names of Democratic candidates for the Illinois house in the 13th Chicago district.

The Democratic senatorial committee for that district today certified to Hughes the names of John G. Ryan, incumbent, and Adam S. Mioduski, a Horner partisan, as the district's two Democratic candidates for representation.

CHICAGO PARADES SCRAPPING CUBS AROUND THE CITY

Players Confident They Will Trim Yankees in World Series

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Those scrapping Chicago Cubs, not a truly great ball club, but hotter than is lawful, came home today to a jubilant townsfolk, bringing with them another National League pennant.

There was a parade for Gabby Hartnett's honeys, starting at Wright's field and winding through the city, in tardy tribute to a bunch of fellows who didn't know when they were licked.

The players who clinched the flag only two days ago at St. Louis and were somewhat the worse for wear, would vastly have preferred to spend the day in strenuous resting-up for the start of the World Series Wednesday against the New York Yankees.

When they finish their parading today, the senior league champs won't have a thing to do until 11 A. M. tomorrow when they are scheduled for a brief practice at Wrigley Field. The Yanks are to work in the afternoon. The Cubs, by the way, claim they are not at all scared of the Yanks.

Tenor of Remarks.
Last night on the train the tenor of their remarks was: "The dice are rolling for us. We're hot. If this only keeps up we'll give those Yankees the surprise of their young lives. Give us our share of the breaks and we'll beat 'em."

One thing for sure about this Cubs team, it isn't licked now. After the cat-fight it has been through the past month, in which it had to win 21 out of 25 games to nose out the Pittsburgh Pirates, it isn't likely to get in a strained condition about the World Series. The players seem to feel that they are over the hump, and they are a relaxed lot of athletes.

Hartnett, the big catcher-manager, is grinning again and wearing his cigar at a cocky angle. He has two badly damaged fingers, jammed by foul tips on Thursday and Friday, yet he swears he will be in there when the shooting starts on Wednesday. Augie Galan, regular outfielder, still is in the hospital with a twisted knee and won't get into the Series, but Phil Cavarretta will replace him with no appreciable loss of strength.

Delays Pitching Choice.
Hartnett says he won't decide upon his pitching choice for the first game before tomorrow night, at the earliest, but it is almost a foregone conclusion he will lead with Bill Lee, his 22-game winner, following up with Clay Bryant and Dizzy Dean.

There is general agreement in the victory of the Cubs spices up the World Series, the reason being that they are a hell-bent ball club in the midst of a winning streak, sparked by two hot-shot pitchers, Lee and Bryant. If the National League has any chance whatsoever of keeping the Yanks from winning their third straight world championship, a club in the present condition of the Cubs is most likely to do it.

However, the best advice still is: Don't bet on prize fights, and don't bet against the Yankees.

Says Lincoln Always Talked to Train Crew
Mount Carmel, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Charles N. Coursey, retired locomotive engineer, recalled on his 90th birthday today that President Abraham Lincoln, when traveling from Washington by train, "would walk down the platform and shake hands with all members of the train crew before getting aboard."

"I like to look into the countenance of the men in charge of the train I ride in," Coursey quoted Lincoln as saying to a friend who sought to discourage the practise. Coursey, who retired 20 years ago, began railroading between Washington and Baltimore in 1861 when he was 16 years old.

GERMAN TROOPS OCCUPY SUDETEN TERRITORY TODAY

Hitler Cheered Madly by Great Crowds; Says Nation Rejoices

With the German Army of Occupation in Sudetenland, Oct. 3 — (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler, triumphantly entering Sudetenland, told its inhabitants today his greeting "is at the same time a pledge."

"Over this Germany, this greater Germany, is its shield, is its sword as protection," the fuehrer declared.

He stepped unexpectedly before madly cheering crowds at Eger, in the third and most populous of the four Sudetenland zones his troops will occupy before Saturday.

Almost half of the six minutes of his speech was taken up by the crowds, cheering and hailing their "liberator."

"I greet not only you, but the entire Sudetenland, which in a few days will belong to the reich," he told them.

"Welded together in unity we must stand together. All must support each other."

"Deutschland is happy over these days."

"Not only you—the whole nation—is experiencing these days with you."

"The whole nation rejoices with you."

"Your happiness is that of the 75,000,000 in the reich that was hitherto."

80,000,000 Population
The fuehrer evidently was referring to the fact that Germany's population soon will be almost 80,000,000.

"Similarly your sufferings of the past period were also our sufferings," he exclaimed.

"In this solemn hour let us thank Almighty God that on our way thus far he has blessed us and pray that that under his guidance our steps in the future may also be guided right."

Almost at the same time that the first German troops entered Eger from three sides at 9:30 A. M., (2:30 A. M., C. S. T.) the first German railroad train with German trainmen crossed the former frontier.

In places of honor with the fuehrer's personal, black-shirted body guard were the Sudeten German "free corps" of Eger, the Sudeten labor service and formations of men and women gymnasts in grayish blue costumes.

Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten nazi leader whom Hitler named Sudeten reichs commissioner for his work in behalf of annexation, accompanied the chancellor.

They crossed the former German border into Sudetenland at Wildenau, one-half mile from Henlein's home town of Aach, at 11:16 A. M. (4:16 A. M., C. S. T.)

New Milk Bottles Much More Sanitary
Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Development of a new sanitary lip to the commercial milk bottle was announced today by Dr. Lloyd Arnold of the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

The newly-designed lip is narrower with setbacks reducing the size as it becomes a part of the neck. The old round lipped bottle caused milk to spread over an area of 1 1/2 to 2 inches of the bottle's surface, Dr. Arnold said. The new one cuts this area to 1-2 inch.

"The weakest link in the sanitary handling of milk is the capping of the bottle," Dr. Arnold said. "If hood caps are used, the price is greater than if the disk or plug cap is used. The hood cap tucks the milk better."

The new design does not drip, pours clean and can be capped with less than half the material, either paper or metal, than any bottle now in common use, Dr. Arnold said.

Chicago City Opera Company Plans Gala Week of Programs

A week of gala programs, with several debuts and many important artists, will open the 1938 season of the Chicago City Opera company. Beginning Saturday, Oct. 29, with a non-subscription performance of "Otello," in which Helen Jepson will sing Desdemona for the first time, with Giovanni Martinelli and Lawrence Tibbett, grand opera will continue for a full seven weeks, bringing Chicago all the principal operatic artists of the world.

Sunday night for the first week, Oct. 30, will be the first evening of ballet by the Littlefield Ballet company, imported from Philadelphia as the official ballet of the Chicago City Opera company for the season. Ballets for this first of seven programs by the Littlefield company, to be presented in the Civic Opera house are: "Mousetrap" to music by Chopin; "Fairy Doll," by Josef Tayer; and "Terminal" by Herbert Kingsley.

"Aida" will be the second opera on the schedule. Monday night, Oct. 31, in it, Dusolina Giannini, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera association, and Bruna Castagna, mezzo-soprano who also comes from the New York company, will make their Chicago debuts.

The first of this season's revivals will be presented on Wednesday night, Nov. 2. "Die Meistersinger," not staged in Chicago since 1938 when Rene Maison sang the important part of "Walter," will be the production, in which three more artists make Chicago debuts—Maria Reining, Viennese lyric soprano; Joel Berglund, baritone, and Adolph Vogel, bass baritone of the Metropolitan. Rene Maison will again be in the cast.

The Thursday night performance will be "La Gioconda," with Anna Lesakaya. A popular-priced series will again be presented this year on Thursday evenings.

Lawrence Tibbett will return on Friday night, Nov. 4, to sing "Rigoletto." Hilde Reggiani, young coloratura soprano from Italy, will sing her first notes in America in this opera, as "Gilda." Armand Tokatyian will also be in the cast.

The Saturday matinee will bring Bruna Castagna back to sing with Rene Maison and Carlo Morrelli in "Samson and Delilah," and "Madame Butterfly," with Maria Reining, George Czaplinski and James Melton, will close the first week of the opera season on Saturday night.

Other high-lights on the 1938 schedule include Kirsten Flagstad singing "Elsa" in Lohengrin; Lily Pons in the "Barber of Seville," and Eva Turner in "Turandot."

Diary of '63 Begins 1938-'39 Season for Local D. A. R. Group

Between 35 and 40 members of the Dixon chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, were entertained with an 1863 diary, "Westward by Covered Wagon," at their opening meeting of the year Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Wilbur Hutchinson was hostess at her country home on rural route 4.

The diary, written by Mrs. Harriett Sanders, was read by Mrs. Alice Beede, who is a close friend of the writer's daughter, who resides in Butte, Mont. The account by Mrs. Sanders tells of the journey which the Edgerton and Sanders families made in a covered wagon from Omaha, Neb., to Bannack, Idaho Territory.

Adventures with Indians, whom the courageous travelers entertained with singing, an Indian funeral, the collection and pressing of wild flowers, and experiences with outlaw bandits of early Montana, lend color and interest to the story. The travelers were three months on the way, leaving Omaha in June and arriving at their destination in September. At one point along the way, Mrs. Sanders wrote they were required to pay $15 a week in gold for a room.

Mr. Edgerton became the first governor of Montana, and Mr. Sanders was the first United States senator from Montana.

Mrs. W. G. Murray, the chapter president, conducted the business meeting, and asked for monthly reports by the officers. Miss Josephine Nichols introduced the guest speaker.

During a social hour at the conclusion of the afternoon, tea was served. Mrs. R. W. Sproul poured.

The Misses Grace and Mae Johnson and Mrs. L. B. Jones are to be hostesses at the next meeting, Nov. 5.

TRUE STORIES

PROGRESS THROUGH CHEMISTRY

By Dr. Jas. K. Hunt. E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., Inc.

New Products From Nature's Building Blocks

In recent years we have heard much of synthetic products, and rightly so, since they are necessary to modern living and influence our daily lives more than we realize.

Some of the necessities and comforts of life we can get directly from nature, but nature has not seen fit to supply us directly with everything we need and desire. And in the case of certain products which nature has furnished, the supply is not sufficient for our demands. She has, however, supplied the necessary raw materials from which man can make what he wishes, if he only knows how to go about the job.

Through years of study and research, the chemist has learned how to take apart the things supplied by nature—the air and the sea, rocks and minerals, plants and animals, and—what is more important—how to use the resulting "bricks" and "building blocks" to make synthetic materials.

Certain of these synthetic or man-made materials are identical with those supplied by nature, as in the case of camphor now made by the chemist from ordinary turpentine, which could not be distinguished from the natural product even by the camphor tree itself of far-away Formosa. It is different, however, with the man-made fiber, rayon, which the chemist makes from cellulose derived from the spruce tree and cotton linters. This synthetic fiber, made by a process somewhat like that used by the silk worm, and sometimes made in filaments which are even finer than a silk worm can spin, is nevertheless not silk. In 1936, however, this country alone consumed about 323,000,000 pounds of rayon, more than five times the amount of silk used.

Another man-made product, sometimes called "synthetic rubber," has the good qualities of rubber without certain of its shortcomings. But it is chemically different from rubber, and therefore not actually synthetic rubber. And the plastics used in making beautiful toilet articles of delicate pastel colors are things nature forgot to make. Nature also failed to supply us with the rainbow of bright, fast dyes which the chemist makes from coal tar. Using nature's own building blocks, the chemist also makes delicate perfumes and flavors, and even drugs for the prevention and healing of disease—drugs which, but for the chemist, we should do without, since nature has not seen fit to supply them.

Beautiful and durable finishes for our automobiles, chemicals to make the tires wear longer and prevent the motor from knocking, "extreme pressure" lubricants for the modern gears, transparent plastics used in making safety glass, industrial explosives for the building of highways and tunnels, pyroxylin-coated fabrics for upholstery and window shades, bleaching agents, bright colors for chinaware, ammonia and other refrigerants, transparent cellulose wrapping material, chemicals for making textile fabrics water-proof and crease-resistant—these and scores of other necessary products are made by the chemist using building blocks obtained from the basic raw materials provided by nature.

Liner Queen Mary's Facilities Crowded

New York, Oct. 3—(AP)—Facilities of the liner Queen Mary were strained to accommodate the 2,112 passengers the vessel landed today, the largest list she ever had carried.

Twenty-four hours before she sailed from England several hundred Americans tried to obtain accommodations to get away from what then looked like war. The Queen Mary was able to carry only 275 of them and cots were set up in the drawing room, the gymnasium and in the broadcasting room to accommodate the extra passengers.

Ship's officers said passengers were jubilant Thursday night when it was announced the four-power pact had been signed at Munich. They said more than 30 persons arranged for a return booking immediately.

HOW POPULATIONS ARE CONSIDERED

Statisticians dealing with United States census figures and population trends have arrived at conclusion that the population increase of this country during the present decade will have been only about 9 millions, whereas in the decade ended in 1910 the increase was 16 millions. At the present rate the population soon will become stationary, but the time will depend upon a number of unpredictable factors.

Americans generally look upon our slackened growth with little alarm. The fact is that, in the strictest sense of the word, we are not a nation at all. We are a collection of people from overseas. Millions of persons in the United States retain cultural ties with some nation in Europe. Even descendants of Mayflower stock, while they may have a large number of "American" forbears, probably class themselves today as Anglo-Saxons.

This mixed assembly of persons, while it may introduce some political and social problems not often encountered abroad, still has its advantages. If, by some chance, we should feel that national security demanded a greater population, we would not see political leaders resorting to the stratagems used by Hitler, Mussolini and others. We could simply let down the immigration bars and welcome newcomers, a million or so a year, from selected countries. While these new arrivals might lack some of the American traditions cherished by veteran Americans, still they would be of the same stock that build up this country, its government and its traditions.

Meanwhile, although there is some debate over wisdom of drastic reduction of immigration quotas, the law is wisely drawn in that it attempts to admit people who fit best, as shown by experience.

IS HE SOUND IN FUNDAMENTALS?

In a contribution to a Chicago newspaper, a youth who identifies himself as a 17-year-old student, notes that there are 10 million people unemployed, and that it takes a big man to handle all the spending agencies.

Disregarding the thing that the youth is looking at, we still find a stimulating thought in his argument. It is to how "big" a man must be to be a good president and as to what is a "big" man.

Governor Harding of Iowa used to get close to his audience by telling them that a governor isn't any bigger than a mayor, that he only has a better job. And so it often is with a president. He isn't any bigger than a governor. He only has a better job. In fact, our president was a governor when he became president. Another fact is that as a governor he had piled up an indebtedness of about 100 million dollars for the people of New York, while another bidder for the nomination was Governor Byrd of Virginia, who has made an enviable reputation in handling the finances of the Old Dominion. Yet the man who made the worst mess of finances became the president. Governor Byrd went to the senate, but the other governor got the better job.

It is our opinion that the country need not be concerned about how "big" a man is before he becomes president, if he is sound in fundamentals. For instance, in public opinion of bigness, a governor of New York is regarded as bigger than a governor of Virginia or of Massachusetts. We believe that is a fair statement. Of course, it is the "bigness" of the New York delegations in the national conventions and the "bigness" of the delegation in the electoral college that makes a governor of New York most "available" for the presidency, rather than the inevitable "bigness" of the man.

There was Calvin Coolidge, unknown except for his declaration that no group of men anywhere anytime has a right to strike against the public. When he became president the question immediately was, how big is Coolidge?

Most of us are like the curiosity seeker who only looks at the top of the Empire building. If one really would know something about the building, he looks at the foundation. Most of us are just top-lookers. We looked to see how high Calvin Coolidge was. What determined the qualifications of Mr. Coolidge for the presidency was how sound he was in fundamentals.

If the architects and engineers figured out a sound foundation for the Empire State building, they could keep on going with story on story. If they were unsound in a single important fundamental, they left an error that eventually will give trouble. The structure may not fall in the first year, but it may cut its life in two.

So it is with presidents and with governments. If the president thinks soundly and builds governmental foundations sound, he can go on and on, and his government can go on and on. But if he permits legislation that makes a slight concession to error for the benefit of this group and makes a small concession to error for the temporary benefit of that group, he is packing away trouble for the future presidents and for the government itself.

If a president undertakes to ride a horse in both directions at once, he at least lays himself open to suspicion that he doesn't know what is fundamentally sound. He may even imagine he can sweep back the tides with his presidential broom.

HOW TO HUNT A JOB

The curriculum of high schools has undergone many changes and extensions and has come to include a heterogeneous assortment of subjects unheard of in the school days of parents of the present generation of pupils in secondary schools. But, so far as can be ascertained by the National Occupational Conference, only one city in America has placed on the "must" list a course in job-finding.

That city is Oakland, Calif. The name of the course is How to Hunt a Job. It is not elective, but required of every high school senior and no one can be graduated without passing an examination in this subject. All the work of the elementary and secondary schools is of no avail to the Oakland pupils unless they can prove to their teachers that they have put to good use the lessons taught in this course, which was established last year and is included again in the schedule for 1938-39.

The problem of employment for the youth of the nation is vital. Established by the Oakland school system of a department of occupational adjustment has for its purpose the coordination of education, training, ambition, qualification and placement activities. The job question is so important that many officials in responsible positions in education have come to regard the Oakland development as more than a mere experiment, but as an example of what others throughout the country may be called upon to do for all the youth of their communities, those in school as well as those out of school.

Lectures, motion pictures, exercises in deportment, tests in occupational fitness, all these will not create jobs, but they may be helpful in cutting down the period of idleness following graduation. The experience of those in charge of the work at Oakland has encouraged the continuance of the course, because of the favorable record of last year's graduates placed in good jobs.

NORTH SHORE RY. SERVICE MAY BE RESTORED SOON

Receiver Will Ask Judge To Approve Agreement to End Strike

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Plans to resume service on the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad this week were formulated today after operating workers approved an agreement ending a seven weeks' controversy over a pay cut.

The electric line, serving more than a score of suburbs and other communities between Chicago and Milwaukee, abandoned operations August 16 when operating employees quit in protest against a 15 per cent wage reduction.

Terms proposed by Col. A. A. Sprague, federal receiver for the road, were accepted by the 950 operating workers at meetings here and in Milwaukee last night. The company has approximately 1300 employees.

The agreement provides for a contract until May 31, 1939 with the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway & Motor Coach Employees, and a closed shop.

The old wage scale was established but employees receiving more than 50 cents an hour will be paid 20 per cent in receiver's certificates for 60 days and 15 per cent in the certificates for the next 30 days. Others will be paid entirely in cash. The pay scale will be subject to adjustment after three months.

To Ask Court Approval
Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson will be asked to approve the agreement tomorrow.

Robert Armstrong, member of the union's executive board, said the agreement included provisions for a closed shop, designation of the Amalgamated as sole bargaining agent, and creation of an arbitration board to settle future disputes which may arise.

Although a closed shop was established, supervisory and clerical employees and workers covered by other labor contracts would be exempt from the Amalgamated's control. The Amalgamated held a contract for 19 years prior to the strike but its jurisdiction was challenged recently by two rail brotherhoods. The National Labor Relations Board has yet to make a decision.

The agreement provided for recall of workers on the basis of seniority. It also ordered maintenance of the status quo for a period of 30 days after the outbreak of any future dispute. The dispute would be arbitrated by one representative from each side and one neutral arbitrator if negotiations during the 30 day period fail to effect a settlement.

STORY OF CHILD BRINGS ARREST OF HER FATHER

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Police of suburban Brookfield held James K. Matter, 42, an industrial engineer, on a murder charge today after his wife, Marguerite, was found shot through the heart in the bedroom of the family home.

Police Chief Thomas Mahoney, who swore out the murder warrant, said the 37-year-old mother of three children had been slain yesterday with her husband's army rifle, a souvenir of his World War service.

The police official said Matter told him his wife had shot herself. Matter's daughter, Martha Gene, 12, corroborated his story but later, Chief Mahoney said, changed her recital.

In her second version, Mahoney said, the girl related: "I was in our bedroom, with Jimmy and Bobby. I heard mama scream and heard a shot. I ran in to mama's room. Daddy was cleaning his gun. Mother was on the bed, with a blanket up against her chest."

Mahoney said he learned the engineer had quarreled with his wife frequently and that he had been taking drugs for several weeks to ease the pain of a shattered heel, suffered in an accident.

The police official said it would have been virtually impossible for Mrs. Matter to shoot herself in the heart with the rifle. The distance from the rifle muzzle to the trigger is six inches longer than her arm, he said, adding that there were no powder burns on the body.

SUGGESTS SUCKERS.
Milwaukee, Wis.—(AP)—C. F. Schmidt found his enjoyment of summer park concerts spoiled by persons who talked, applauded and generally were noisy.

Schmidt sent $5 the other day to the park commission with the request that it be used to start a fund for the purchase of all-day suckers to be distributed to future concert audiences. That, he said, should keep them quiet.

MARIONETTES TO APPEAR AT HIGH SCHOOL FRIDAY

Europe for generations has had its marionette shows. Two of the most outstanding, the Teschner Marionettes in Vienna, and Podrecca's "Piccoli" in Italy, have permanent theatres in which each generation carries on the traditions established by their ancestors.

But quite recently in Europe, a new wave of interest has been created in American Marionettes. Sherwood and Mathews, managing producers of marionette units in America, have sold two of these units to European agents. These American marionettes—combining the old world quaintness with American sophistication—have caused a great stir in European centers; and the demand in night clubs, hotels, and cafes is rapidly increasing abroad, as well as in this country.

Marionettes are no longer considered childish entertainment, any more so than the Walt Disney cartoons. It requires an adult mind to fully appreciate the art in both forms of entertainment.

In all the large cities in America and Europe, marionette acts in the finest hotels, cafes, night clubs, and theatres have come to stay; and the demand for them is increasing.

The Rufus Rose Marionettes, in the A. & P. Carnival at the Chicago World's Fair, were considered the most popular and certainly the most talked about attraction. This original company with Rufus Rose in person, in two elaborate productions—"Pinocchio" and "Treasure Island" plus a continental variety show, has been engaged to appear here sponsored by the High School P-T. A. Friday.

KENTUCKY POET TURNS HIS BACK ON NATIVE STATE

Greenup, Ky., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Jesse Stuart, 31-year-old mountain poet injured in a political argument "while my back was turned," has turned his back on his native state.

The noted author of "Man with a Bull-Tongue Plow", who returned recently from European studies provided for by the Guggenheim Foundation, vowed "I guess I'll just leave the state for good."

An editorial Stuart contributed to the Greenup Citizen brought on the argument—in a local drug store.

Stuart claimed, and police court witnesses corroborated his story, that Constable Amos Allen of Argallite, Ky., objected to the editorial, which referred to Rep. Joe Bates (D-Ky.) as "the dictator of Greenup county."

The mountain poet said he exchanged remarks with Allen, then turned his back and was struck from behind with a black jack.

"It was the most unfair thing I've ever run across," Stuart said. "I guess I'll just leave the state for good. I got kicked out of the Greenup county school system on account of politics and kicked out of my county on account of politics."

Stuart once was principal of Greenup county high school. He now is an English instructor at Portsmouth, Ohio, high school, a short distance down the Ohio river from here.

He was released from a hospital after treatment of head injuries.

Police Judge William Flannagan, Jr., placed Stuart and Allen under $200 bonds on charges of breach of peace pending a hearing.

Washington—Largely obscured by the crisis in Europe has been the fact that 70,000 Japanese troops, loaded on transports, have been en route to Canton, prepared to capture that vital metropolis of south China. Simultaneously a part of the Japanese fleet has been converging near Hongkong.

The significance of this has not been lost upon the British. Hongkong is their most important outpost in the Far East. Canton is a great British trading center and virtual capital for Britain's sphere of influence in South China.

It is axiomatic that the Japanese always make it hot for the white man in China when he is absorbed with troubles in Europe.

This may explain the sudden mobilization of the British Mediterranean fleet at Alexandria, Egypt. While the home fleet has been mobilized north of Scotland, 52 vessels in the Mediterranean have been called to Alexandria, and diplomatic speculation is sent a large part of them will be sent to Singapore, ready for eventually Japan.

Thus in case of war, Mussolini would have the Mediterranean fleet at his disposal as far as the British fleet is concerned.

Note—Although 53 ships sounds like a gigantic fleet, it contains only three battleships, all very old. The British home fleet is much stronger, though even this one includes only seven battleships, four others being in drydock, with one at Gibraltar.

Diplomatic Fatalism
Quote from Judge R. Walton Moore, 80-year-old counselor of the state department, who has been worried over the international situation of late: "What is to be will be, even if it doesn't happen."

Dewey vs. Pecora
When reading about the legal squabble between New York Supreme Court Justice Pecora and racket-busting Tom Dewey over the Hines case, it is interesting to know that the two once were great friends and that Pecora was partly responsible for putting Dewey in his present position.

Here is an unwritten piece of history about their relations: Before Dewey decided to run for district attorney, he came to Judge Pecora and asked his advice regarding his political chances.

"My wife thinks I ought to stay out of politics and make a lot of money," he confided. Also he expressed some doubt as to whether he could be elected, and raised other difficulties. "Never mind the wife and the other things," replied Pecora: "let's see if you can be elected. That's the only thing that counts."

So they sat down to figure out what Dewey would need to make the grade. The two chief requirements he demanded before he could consent to enter the race were $100,000 of campaign contributions and the support of New York's most influential editors.

The latter included the majority of New York's newspapers, and Pecora proceeded to help Dewey contact them—including Joe Patterson, powerful editor of the Daily News, who was in Europe but whom they reached by telephone.

In the end, Dewey got the campaign requirements he demanded and threw his hat in the ring for district attorney. The talk with Pecora was one of the milestones in his political career.

Embarrassed Bill Green
President William Green of the A. F. of L. seems to be having no better luck telling his boys how to vote than President Roosevelt had in the purge.

Visiting Pittsburgh, Green advocated the re-election of Senator Jim Davis, Republican. Newspaper presses were still rolling out the story when James McDevitt, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, issued a caustic blast rebuking Green and declaring for Governor George Earle, Davis' New Deal opponent—whom Green had endorsed against a CIO candidate in last spring's Democratic primary.

Angry, other state federation leaders also jumped on Green. At a meeting of the state executive committee, their resentment boiled over in a sizzling resolution denouncing Davis and his running-mate as "reactionaries" and foes of labor.

These rebuffs, however, did not deter Mr. Green. Passing through Ohio, he plumped to the other side of the fence and came out for Charles Sawyer, Democratic nominee for governor.

Again the reaction was prompt and defiant. John E. Breidenbach, vice president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, jumped down Green's throat for—all things—supporting a CIO-endorsed candidate.

"President Green's endorsement of Sawyer," trumpeted Breidenbach, "does not reflect the sentiments of thousands of A. F. of L. members who are waging a militant fight, in accordance with Green's orders, to carry out the A. F. of L. policy of defeating the C. I. O. and all political candidates who accept aid from the C. I. O."

Perhaps the unkindest cut of all was the action of the A. F. of L. Trades & Labor Council of Waukesha, Wisconsin, which adopted a resolution berating Green for "uniting with the United States Chamber of Commerce and industrialists of the Tom Girdler stripe" in attacking the National Labor Relations Board.

Merry-Go-Round
Washington telegraph operators got so many foreign language messages to transmit that they have a hard time sending a simple "Happy birthday." One they got the day started off with "Rudatoryogato tujocoshuyonka kokumheiwano" . . . Senator Gerold Nye jumped out of his car in front of the Department of Agriculture, hurrying to an appointment with Secretary Wallace. A guard insisted that he move his car before he could go upstairs. . . . At a recent Cuban embassy party, a Cuban proposed a toast, "I drink to a third term for President Roosevelt. He has been so good to us!"

Taking No Chances
Clyde Ellis, the 29-year-old Bentonville, Arkansas New Dealer who defeated veteran Representative Claude Fuller for re-nomination last month, does not believe in fraternizing with the enemy—even indirectly.

Interested in developing a little TVA in his district, Ellis started on an inspection tour of the great Tennessee Valley project, stopping overnight in a Birmingham, Ala., hotel. After registering, he discovered that also staying in the hotel was Republican Representative Dewey Short, whose Missouri district adjoins Ellis'.

Earlier in the day Short had ad-

Answer to Question No. 1
1. Quite dishonorable, although before breaking the engagement the party whose feelings have cooled should make perfectly sure he or she can never develop the proper affection again. Nearly all lovers, especially those who go through reasonably long engagements—as every one should—experience periods when romance begins to change into reality. These periods should be occasions for re-examination of one's feelings and the probable long-time congeniality of the two—their common background, education, interests and philosophy of life; but they should not mistake such periods for a loss of real love.

Answer to Question No. 2
2. The chief thing in your life and mine is other people. Even Robinson Crusoe kept a record of his life, chiefly because he was also thinking of other people. Life is all a matter of relationships. First to one's physical surroundings and second, to other human beings. As the great philosopher, William James, said, "The human relationships are the main things." It is for that reason that getting along with other people—one's human environment—is the greatest thing in life and the one that brings the most happiness.

Answer to Question No. 3
3. Yes. Many studies show that far more women than men consult doctors, lawyers, psychologists and psychiatrists with their personal and emotional problems. More women than men break down nervously. Also, women tend more than men to get their feelings easily hurt and carry disappointments and griefs longer—in fact are more likely to carry emotional chips on their shoulders. Whether this is due to heredity or environment and the kind of life women lead is unknown.

at reduced prices to relief and low income families.

President Roosevelt already has directed the agriculture department, officials said, to invite leaders of the producing, marketing and manufacturing sections of the cotton industry to consider a program based on the domestic subsidy proposal at a meeting here soon.

Meanwhile, with an estimated surplus of more than 13,000,000 bales in existence, cotton belt senators have been clamoring for the government to increase its present cotton loan rate of 8.3 cents a pound to 11.8 cents, the maximum allowed under the farm law.

Chairman Smith (D-S. C.) of the Senate agriculture committee, leading the fight for bigger loans, contends the south will go bankrupt unless its cotton income is boosted. Production control programs, under which the Federal government pays farmers for holding down their cotton acreage, have not prevented accumulation of the huge price-depressing surplus.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Unreality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 2.

The Golden Text was, "Let not him that is deceived trust in vanity; for vanity shall be his recompense" (Job 15:31).

Among the citations which composed the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Behold the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. All nations before him are as nothing, and they are accounted to him less than nothing, and vanity" (Isaiah 40:10, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "From beginning to end, whatever is mortal is composed of material human beliefs and of nothing else. That only is real which reflects God" (p. 478).

TOO EAGER FOR SCHOOL.

Denver.—(AP)—Roll call at Wyatt school on the opening day of the fall season showed one extra pupil in the room.

He was a four-year-old and he wouldn't volunteer any information other than the fact that school was starting and he was there.

An explanation from the teacher that he was too young for school brought only tears. Finally police were called to take him home.

Unable to give his name or address he was taken to the matron's quarters. He stayed until a newspaper account of his plight, with his picture, brought his parents to the rescue.

England's coastline measures about 4650 miles.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

THE CHARACTERS

Kathleen Gregory: Beautiful, red-haired daughter of Angus Gregory who owns The Golden Girl mine.

Bridget Riley: Gregory's ex-secretary.

Yesterday: Kathleen decides Bridget is necessary to her plans.

Chapter Four

Outline of a Campaign

The foyer of the apartment housing Miss Riley was not impressive, but Kathleen exclaimed with pleasure when she stood on the threshold of Bridget's suite.

"Like it?" Bridget, an exotic figure in scarlet lounging pajamas, had opened the door.

"It's like you", Kathleen answered. "Those cloudy blue walls give an illusion of space; that white furniture is so smartly simple; and the touches of gay color are like your humor."

Bridget laughed. "Then I'm simple and give an illusion of space. Come in."

Kathleen glanced in to where a table, for two, was spread before a wide window. "You're expecting someone," she demurred.

"Expecting you," Bridget told her. "I know the Gregorys."

"Then you will listen to my plans?"

"Curiosity has overcome discretion," admitted the young woman. During dinner Kathleen outlined her campaign.

"From what Dad said, I understand both mines center around the town of Neutrality on the southern Colorado-Utah line. I want to go into that town as just another girl. I don't want to be associated with the Gregorys in any way. I want a reason for staying there for some time and I want a companion. I thought we might pose as artists."

"Do you paint?" inquired Bridget.

Kathleen laughed. "I've never worked on anything but my own skin. Aunt Beatrice says a futuristic sunset would look modest by comparison."

"Small towns are curious," warned Bridget. "To pose as painters we'd have to splash color on canvas with some suggestion of motif. Personally, I couldn't paint the broad side of a barn."

Kathleen sat a few moments in deep study. "I know an author. He does queer things and goes queer places."

"It wouldn't be logical for two authors to be working on the same story at the same time," objected Bridget. "Of course it would give us the right to track the man to his lair, and the right to actually live in Neutrality for any length of time."

"Then we'll be one author," decided Kathleen. "You can handle a typewriter and I can't, so you're elected. I'll be a friend or cousin or companion."

Bridget nodded. "That might work."

"Then you will go with me?"

"A Real World"

Bridget didn't answer at once. She sat looking out through the cross-barred pane to white walls studied with warm yellow oblongs.

"Do you realize what this would mean?" she asked. "Could you play your part? Could you cook and clean, wear bargain rack frocks, do without, not only luxuries, but comforts? You know a mountain mining town is not a winter resort."

Kathleen stood up, walked to the window and stood, heels squarely planted, hands clasped tightly behind her.

"I don't know," she told Bridget when she turned. "I've never tried. But I can do anything anyone else can do if it's necessary. If it is necessary I'll scrub floors; I'll do anything to make that damned MacDonald eat dirt."

Bridget studied her a few moments and her eyes were a little pitying, warmed with tenderness.

"I'll go," she decided. "It will be an interesting experiment in human behavior. Perhaps I'm wondering if your gold is real; wondering if you'll still be The Golden Girl when you've passed through a real world."

"Haven't I been living in a real world?" inquired Kathleen indignantly.

"I'll ask you to answer that for yourself later. It's going to be amusing to watch a feminine Mounty after her man. Now come, we've work to do. First on the list of musts is obtaining power of attorney, from your father. This is imperative if you have to force the right-of-way under fire."

Next your name and background. My family lives in Chicago; we're legion. They'll adopt you as one of them and we can use their address as a medium of correspondence exchange with your father."

"Then let me take the name of Riley," suggested Kathleen, "and for a first name . . . Cleopatra, Cleo Riley."

Bridget laughingly agreed. "I'll drop the Riley and be myself, Bridget Donahue."

At three o'clock the next morning, Dan drove Cleo Riley, nee Kathleen Gregory, to her home. In her bedroom Kathleen disrobed.

Breaking the Shell

The walls were murals of pale gold, russet and green, against a dull white background. The bed was fit for a princess of childhood

THIS WEEK'S WEATHER

THE COMING OF FROST IN THE AUTUMN OF 1938

THE COLDEST AIR WILL COME FROM QUEBEC, LESSER COLD WINDS FROM MANITOBA, COUNTER WARM MOVES WILL COME VIA LOUISIANA AND CALIF.

COMING FROSTS

Most of the chill winds which will blow during the first three weeks of October of this year will come from the icy plateau of Greenland, or from the cold regions of the province of Quebec, in northeastern Canada. These winds will sweep down across New York State, Pennsylvania, portions of West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia and may continue as far south as the Carolinas. Another branch of these same winds will blow over Hudson Bay and will approach us by way of Manitoba, sweeping down over Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, and portions of Illinois and Wisconsin. Still other chill winds will follow from the Rocky Mountain highlands and through the states of Washington and Oregon.

Whenever a cold wind blows there must be a warm wind blowing somewhere else. Otherwise a vacuum would be quickly created. But a vacuum cannot form, because air pressure is 15 pounds per square inch all over the surface of the earth. Outside air immediately forces air to move into the place vacated by a wind. As cold winds move down from Quebec across our eastern states there will be compensating warm winds which will blow from the central portions of the Gulf of Mexico fan-wise across the middle west as shown in the illustration.

The cold air mass which will come from Manitoba on October 5 and possibly October 6 looks large from a distance. The growing season in the upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys may end at this time. Frost at 36 degrees will kill tender vegetation. Thirty-two degrees will kill ordinary vegetation that is not protected, and at 28 degrees all green things are killed.

WEATHER QUESTIONS

Question: Does the sun revolve in a stationary place in the sky or has it an orbit to travel in? J. S. O'R.

Answer:—The sun is moving toward the constellation of Lyra in the northern sky at the rate of 11 miles per second, carrying all its planets with it. This motion is probably an orbital motion moving around another object, about the stars of the Milky Way.

fairly talls, ruffled canopy, ruffled flounce, and myriads of ruffled pillows. She slipped under the golden puff of elderdown.

"I feel like a chicken in a golden egg," thought Kathleen.

For a moment she forgot Donald MacDonald. She was about to break through her shell. For the first time in her life she was shedding the Gregory insulation.

"Every time I pick up a magazine I see her smirking at me."

Kathleen slid out of bed and went to a mirror. She touched a switch and white light blazed down on her; blazed out on her.

The red-gold hair swung just above her shoulders in a curling bill. Its color was repeated in the braided belt about the ivory satin gown, and in the square neck.

Brown eyes were shaded by lashes of brown with copper tips, and arched by brows so strongly marked that they set the character of the whole face. This then was the face that "smirked" at MacDonald.

Back she went to her bed to sit huddled in lacy pillows, and to pan her wardrobe. Bridget said she would have to "dress down."

But color was the all-important principle and that could be purchased from a bargain basement as easily as from a salon.

There, in the heart of her golden shell, she dreamed of her conquest, visualized herself meeting and conquering this Donald MacDonald.

The man was a hazy figure, unimportant except as an audience. He stood at attention as she saw herself meeting him under various circumstances, all romantic.

While Kathleen dreamed, Bridget sat before her desk working out the practical side of their adventure, long pages filled with notes and figures. And when these were completed she went to the window and watched the dawn appear behind tall buildings and offered a small, incoherent prayer.

"She's had everything from tops to the hearts of men handed her on a golden platter. Let her fight for this—"

Tomorrow: Meeting with Donald MacDonald.

FARMERS KEEP COOL.
Lake Providence, La.—(AP)—It is so much cooler to work at night that the 2,400-acre Olive Dell plantation is doing much of its plowing by tractor headlights instead of by daylight.

W. T. Michener and E. S. Voelker, the plantation owners, say the tractor operators had fewer distractions at night and generally covered more ground.

ANSWER: Neither is correct. The South Pole is colder than the North, but the world's coldest spot is at Verkhoyansk, in Siberia, where temperatures of 90 degrees below zero are recorded.

NOTE: Why are desert animals swift?

BUND MEETINGS IN NEW JERSEY BRING DISORDER

Union City, N. J., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Militant rock-hurling anti-Nazis today had thwarted for the second time in two weeks an attempt by the German-American Volksbund to hold a rally in North Jersey.

An infuriated crowd of 2,000 forced police to request Fritz Kuhn, national bund leader, to call off last night's celebration by his followers of the German acquisition of Sudetenland and of a traditional Bavarian festival.

The booing demonstrators, some of whom wore veterans' overseas caps, stoned Kuhn as Police Commissioner Harry E. Little escorted him from headquarters of the Hudson county bund to a waiting automobile.

They previously had made two attempts to storm the hall, guarded by nearly 100 policemen. They burned Hitler in effigy and at sight of Kuhn shouted "kill him".

First fights broke out between bundists and demonstrators who carried banners of the American League of Peace and Democracy, the International Labor Defense and the Czechoslovakian societies of Hudson county.

Two weeks ago in Elizabeth, part of a hostile crowd of 3,000 seized possession of a hall where the bund had scheduled a meeting. The remainder massed in front and barred entrance. Fights occurred and finally police persuaded the bund not to go through with the meeting.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers has asked the House committee investigating un-American activities to "go further" into charges that "certain high industrialists" in this country are linked to fascist and nazi activities.

Testimony that such a union existed was given to the committee last week by John C. Metcalfe, its special investigator, but he mentioned no names.

Noting that omission, Charles R. Hook, president of the association, said in a letter to Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) of the House group:

"We do not believe it is sufficient to stop with allegations against 'certain high industrialists.' This must inevitably be a reflection upon all industrialists."

"Speaking for the board of directors of the N. A. M., I respectfully urge that you go farther in your investigation of hidden fascist, nazi, Communist or other un-American activities."

Asserting "we can not believe that any American industrialists would participate in such movements," Hook said persons behind them "should be forced to stand before the public and receive the judgment of the people."

REAL TESTS OF PARTIES COME IN STATE RACES

33 Governorships are at Stake in General Elections Nov. 8

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The real tests of strength between the country's two major political parties this fall will come, in the opinion of many politicians here, in the governorship races.

While both Republicans and Democrats will put up stiff fights over senate and house seats, it is expected the real force will go into the gubernatorial campaigns because of their barings on 1940 presidential election chances.

Governorships are at stake in 33 states. Nominations were completed last week when New York Democrats drafted Governor Herbert H. Lehman to seek his fourth term in a race against racket-smasher Thomas E. Dewey, whom the Republicans had nominated a day earlier.

Lehman was the 11th Democrat to be renominated. Four Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one Progressive also won party assignments to run again.

Many Potentialities

Out of these 33 races, informed Washingtonians agree, will come some strong contenders for presidential nominations two years hence. Victory in New York would put Dewey high among these.

There is considerable belief here that Democratic strategy in persuading Lehman to run again was concerned greatly with hampering whatever national aspirations Republicans may have for Dewey.

Elimination efforts are not all on one side, however. Republican spokesmen say privately they would like to defeat Governor Frank Murphy in Michigan partly because of the 1940 speculation that has centered on him.

Meanwhile, keen White House interest in the Michigan race was disclosed last week in a speech at Grand Rapids by Interior Secretary Ickes. He said that "Franklin D. Roosevelt needs Frank Murphy once more as governor of Michigan."

Murphy is opposed by Republican nominee Frank D. Fitzgerald, former governor whom he defeated for re-election in 1936.

In Spotlight

Both the New York and Michigan struggles will be much in the spotlight between now and the November 8 balloting, but they are by no means the only ones in which Democrats and Republicans will meet in tooth-and-nail battles.

According to the expectations of party spokesmen here, hot fights are in prospect also in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Iowa, Minnesota, California, Oregon and Wisconsin among others.

Wisconsin is one of the states where a multi-party battle is in prospect. There, Progressive Governor Philip F. LaFollette is seeking re-election against Robert K. Henry, the Democratic nominee; Julius P. Hell, Republican; and Frank W. Smith, Union Republicans base their hopes there on the fact they rolled up a heavier primary vote than any other party.

A three-sided race is underway in Minnesota where Farm-Labor Governor Elmer A. Benson is opposed for re-election by Thomas Gallagher, the Democratic nominee, and Harold Stassen, Republican choice.

Results of the Minnesota and Wisconsin elections will be studied closely for their effect on the midwestern liberal party movement to which LaFollette gave new national aspects during the summer when he formally launched the Progressives on a national program.

Germans Enter Czechoslovakia

(NEA Radiophoto)

The long-awaited German invasion of Czechoslovakia came peacefully soon after this picture was taken as Hitler's troops marched into the town of Deggendorf in the southern part of the Czech state bordering on Austria. Flashing by radio from London, this picture shows German troops at Deggendorf exchanging friendly greetings across the border with Sudeten Germans, members of the Czechoslovakian minority that precipitated the European crisis and brought the continent nearer war than at any time since 1918. First reports from Europe stated that soon after this photo was made the German government issued a surprise order forbidding foreign photographers from taking pictures of the actual occupation.

Brain Twizzlers

By PROF. J. D. FLINT

DID I TELL YOU ABOUT MY EXPERIENCE ON THE BRIDGE YESTERDAY?

We don't know why cows should be the only animals with a tendency to stand on railroad tracks but evidently it is an old cow habit and we suppose that's why trains have "cow-catchers."

Aside from that little problem we have something to work on today in the way of a near-argument between a cow and a super stream-liner.

Our Nell, the cow, was standing on the railroad bridge one day, five feet from the center. While standing there she saw the stream-liner bearing down upon her at ninety miles per hour. When bovine instinct told her Nell that she couldn't dispute the right of way with the stream-liner it was just two bridge-lengths away from the edge of the bridge. Immediately our Nell ran towards the stream-liner and got off the bridge at that end with a distance of one foot to spare.

If she had run the other way she would have had three inches of her back porch still on the track when the train got there. How long was the bridge?

Answer to Saturday's Twizzler.

Place seven cubes in the first cup, one in the second and the remaining two in the third. Two is an even number so place the second cup inside the third. This gives you still seven cubes in the first, one in the second three in the third.

Ben would not disclose the identity of the perpetrator of the yarn but hinted strongly that he suspected one of the telephone operators famous for his love of practical jokes.

"Nursing Procedure" was the subject discussed at the regular session of both sections of the attendants school on Friday. Mrs. Nora Anderson, assistant chief nurse was the class instructor.

Hitler Congratulates Spain's Rebel Leader

Hendaye, France, (At the Spanish frontier), Oct. 3.—(AP)—Militiamen counter-attacked on the Ebro front, government dispatches reported today, in an effort to recapture position lost to insurgents during the week-end.

The government line was concentrated on "hill 424", where insurgents reported breaking through successive lines of government fortifications along a two-kilometer front.

A giant air battle was fought over the Ebro front with some 80 warplanes participating. Government advisers said 25 of their pilots met a force more than twice its size with each side losing two planes. Insurgents claimed they downed six enemy aircraft.

On the second anniversary of his assumption of power over the insurgent government, Gen. Francisco Franco received a congratulatory message from Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

How German Troops Move Into Sudetenland To Symbolize Hitler's Latest Triumph

While the rest of the world breathes easier with threat of general European war at least temporarily averted, little Czechoslovakia watches Adolf Hitler's legions march into four areas that go to Germany automatically under the four-power agreement reached at Munich between Hitler, Britain's Chamberlain, Italy's Mussolini and France's Daladier. First to be occupied is a southern area along the Bavarian frontier. Germany slices off a curve of Czech territory bulging into Bavaria and Austria. Next, German troops were to move into a region in the north bordering on Saxony, cutting off two knobs of Czechoslovakia that formerly jutted into Germany. To be taken over next is the hotbed of Konrad Henlein's Nazi activities, the area around Eger and Asch in the extreme western end of the country. And finally Hitler's soldiers march into the section along the northern border of the Czech state near Poland. The map above shows where and when the occupation is being made. Shown also are the areas in which an international commission will probably supervise plebiscites to see whether the territory will remain part of Czechoslovakia or go to Germany.

SUPREME COURT DOCKET HEAVY: CONVENESTODAY

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Supreme Court, reassembling today at 11 A. M., C. S. T., for a new eight-months' term, found a bumper crop of litigation—including fresh attacks on major administration laws—awaiting its attention.

The first session after a summer recess is limited to admitting attorneys to practice and hearing motions. For the next week, however, the eight justices will be busy passing on approximately 350 petitions for review of lower court decisions which have accumulated during the four month adjournment.

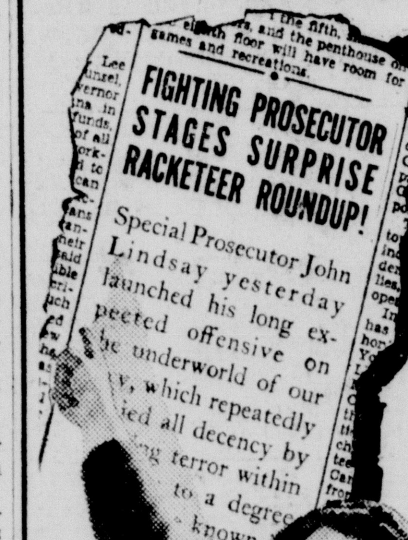

Announcement of the action decided upon will be made next Monday.

At that time arguments also will begin on cases the court agreed last spring to review. These include an attack by 18 private power companies on constitutional validity of the Tennessee Valley Authority act.

Among the petitions awaiting action is an appeal by Thomas J. Mooney, serving a life sentence
